

STOCKSFIELD QUAKERS "FRIENDS ON FRIDAYS"

AN INTERFAITH DISCUSSION ON CLIMATE CHANGE ... as part of the Loving Earth project ...

During September, 2022 an exhibition of 100 panels from the nationwide Quaker Arts "Loving Earth Project" are on display at Stocksfield and Newcastle Quaker Meeting Houses. A further 16 panels made by local Quakers at workshop events are also on display. All panels show a personal vision of the potential loss to ourselves and our planet caused by climate change and how we might respond.

This "Friends on Friday", linked to the Loving Earth Project", will be an opportunity to reflect on, and share our Quaker response to climate change with people of other faiths.

Our Speakers

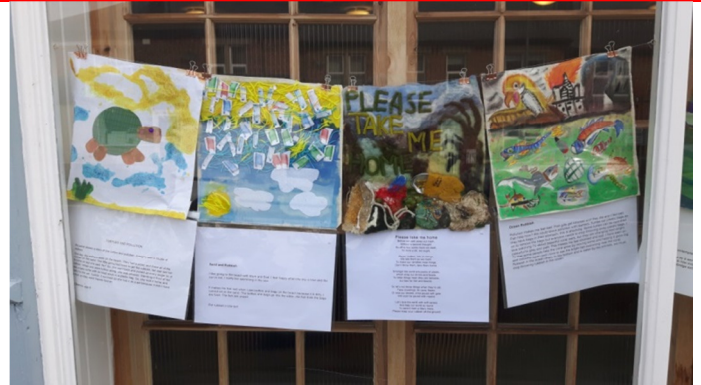

Hassan Ameen

Student, Newcastle Muslim Community

Rev Kanshin Lucas

Buddhist, Throssel Hole, Northumberland

They will speak briefly about their own faith response, with plenty of time for discussion. We can draw on the images shown in the panels to explore our own sense of loss and response and reflect on panels that speak to you.

- The Meeting House will be open from 2.00pm to allow time to view the panels.
- For those attending online the panels can be viewed in the Gallery section of the Loving Earth Project website.
